INAUGURATION DAY.Retiring President Bids a Smiling
Farewell to Friends and Subordinates Amid Rush of Final
Work.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 3.—Bands were playing, soldiers were marching from incoming trains and thousands of visitors in holiday array were parading
the streets today under brilliant sun
and cloudless sky awaiting the arrival of Woodrow Wilson who is to become president of the United States tomorrow.So heavy was the traffic on all railroads that many trains were late,
delaying the arrival of thousands of visitors and participants in the inaugural parade, but weather conditions were such that by tomorrow evening
every organization that is to join the inaugural parade will have arrived.Arrival of Wilson.
The arrival of the new president and his family attended by 500 students from Princeton University and the Essex troops of New Jersey was the magnetic event of the day. The Wilson party was scheduled to reach the Union station at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.Thomas Nelson Page, chairman of the reception committee planned to meet the president-elect and his family when they alighted from their special train. The reception will be brief after which without military escort the Wilsons will be driven to their hotel, where the committee will leave them.At six o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be escorted to the White House where President and Mrs. Taft will greet the Wilsons in the Blue Room.Taft is Very Busy.
President Taft held open house today and with his characteristic smile greeted political friends and foes. Although he was up until 3:00 o'clock
this morning clearing his desk of important business, he was back at work
early and ready to receive callers.
Among the first who came to say good bye were Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff, U. S. A., and the bureau chiefs of the war department.Several assistant secretaries and department officials followed. Among other callers were: Governor Dunne of Illinois and Governor Sulzer of New York.The first Minnesota National Guard
with a band marched into the White House grounds and the officers spoke hands with the president. Captain McCully commanding the presidential yacht Mayflower and other officers of the ship said goodbye today.The president signed commissions of 350 persons whose nominations were confirmed by the senate, wrote his autograph upon several hundred pictures of himself and signed scores
of important letters.Weather is Favorable.
Fair weather Tuesday morning probably followed by unsettled Tuesday afternoon or night, winds becoming variable Tuesday was the official weather bureau forecast for inauguration
day issued early today.Tammany's Showing.
New York, March 3.—Silk hats, frock coats and grey gloves were conspicuous in and about the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio terminals today. Tammany, 2500 strong, was leaving for Washington to march in an inaugural parade for the first time in 20 years.Six special trains, four over the Pennsylvania and two over the Baltimore and Ohio, were chartered to carry the braves. The first was scheduled to pull out at 1:30 p. m., the last at 1:34. Charles P. Murphy leader of Tammany Hall said he would get away on the latter.The railroads estimated that about 40,000 persons in all would be handled out of New York for Washington today. The fifth regiment Massachusetts National Guard went through Jersey City at seven o'clock this morning. Thereafter specials of some sort were moving almost continually.
West Point cadets after having journeyed down the Hudson will start for the capital in two special trains over the Baltimore and Ohio at 9 and 10 o'clock tonight.Wilson Starts Trip.
Trenton, March 3.—Woodrow Wilson left Princeton at 11 o'clock today
for Washington to become president of the United States tomorrow. Mrs.
Wilson, their three daughters, Margaret, Jessie and Eleanor and an escort of 560 Princeton students accompanied them.Long Special.
Princeton, March 3.—The longest special that ever rolled out of Princeton carried Mr. Wilson and his family and their escorts away. As it pulled out the president-elect stood on the platform of the last of the fourteen cars that in hand, looking down on the mass of fluttering handkerchiefs and banners.The smile on his lips vanished as the train gained headway. His lips were moving, and the crowd at his feet heard him join in the singing of the college song, "If Sons Shall Give While They Shall Live, Three Cheers for Old Nassau." As the train disappeared Princeton saw him still standing, his head uncovered, waving rhythmically to the cheers of the song.
As the president-elect stepped aboard the train the students gave him a "locomotive" yell. That was the beginning of a long series of yells.
The president-elect smiled at each cheer, said that he wished he could give as good a cheer in return, andAfter thirty minutes of cheering, hand-shaking and singing a leather-lunged Princetonian, who seemed in charge of affairs, grabbed a megaphone and gave the order, "All aboard," and gave the order, "All
aboard," and gave the order, "All
aboard."RADICAL STEPS WILL MARK THE NEW REGIMEHuerta Government Promise Many Changes in Management of Mexican Affairs.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Mexico City, March 3.—The firm
and energetic military rule promised by the new Mexican government under the Provisional President Huerta, will probably be inaugurated this week.
Huerta has had eight days of conference with the various rebel chiefs or with commissioners sent by them. The government is now disposed to consider as irreconcilable all those rebels
who continue to delay definite recognition of the new order of things.The program of pacification will, it is expected, be put to some severe tests. A force of adherents of Zapata fired on a federal troop train running from the capital to Cuernavaca yesterday and sixty soldiers were killed or wounded.Warfare Continues.
Similar bands of Zapatistas are committing raids in the federal district itself and in the state of Morelos, indicating that some mountain rebel to the south of the capital are determined to keep up the guerrilla warfare despite the negotiations between the government and the brother Zapata.While the federal government expresses itself as sanguine of success in the modern states a lack of harmony between the various bands of rebels in that region was developed
on the arrival here of representatives of Orozco and other chiefs.To Hold Conferences.
Today and tomorrow are to be devoted to conferences between these rebel representatives and the ministers of war and interior. The railroads between the capital and the north still are interrupted. There has been practically no mail from the United States for fifteen days except that brought by steamer to Vera Cruz.Threaten Extortion.
Washington, March 3.—Americans and other foreigners in Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, Mexico, are threatened with extortion by Col. Carranza, a rebel who has demanded from $20,000 to $25,000 to pay and feed his state volunteers. Carranza, according to reports from Eagle Pass, Texas, says
if the money is not forthcoming he will not be responsible for the depredations his men may commit.Four Dead.
Douglas, Ariz., March 3.—Four dead
Mexican soldiers and an unknown number of wounded were taken to Agua Fria today from the point on the international border five miles from here where two troops of the Ninth United States cavalry fought thirty minutes in a skirmish with Mexican regulars yesterday. More than 2,000 shots were fired by the American troops and it is estimated that fully as many were fired by the Mexicans. None of the Americans were hit. Neither side crossed the international line.No Confirmation.
Washington, March 3.—Although Major General Wood, chief of staff of the army called upon the commanding officer at Douglas, Ariz., for a full report on the alleged killing of four Mexicans in a border fight with Ninth cavalry troops, nothing had been heard of the affair early today.ITALIAN GOVERNMENT

Frontier and Prepares For Eventualities.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Geneva, Switzerland, March 3.—The Italian government has joined the rest of the European continental powers in making military preparations. It has increased the Italian garrisons along the Swiss frontier and military engineers are engaged in building new forts commanding the passage from the mouth of the Simplon tunnel toward the east.Chambers for mines have been excavated at the Italian entrance to the great Simplon tunnel and these have been fitted with secret electrical connections so that by pressing a button twenty miles away the tunnel
can be shattered.In the center of the Simplon tunnel
there is a massive steel door which may be worked from either the Swiss or Italian side to block the passage of trains or troops.MAINE SENATOR-ELECT

TO DIVIDE HONORS
WITH INAUGURATIONFive Thousand to March in Washington Tomorrow Under Banner of
"Votes for Women."[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., March 3.—In the memories of the 331,000 residents of Washington and the 150,000 or more visitors now in the national capital today will live as Women's day and as the inauguration of a new president
as tomorrow will be remembered as Wilson's day. For three hours this afternoon the broad stretch of Pennsylvania avenue between the Capitol and the Treasury building, famous as the route of the presidential inaugural processions, resounded with the tread of 5,000 women—and some hundreds of men—marching under the banner of "Votes for Women." The parade was more than a mere spectacle. As division after division passed down
the avenue the tens of thousands of spectators who lined both sides of the historic thoroughfare were visibly impressed by the profoundly earnest character of the demonstration. When the last section had passed from view
more than one spectator was heard to express the opinion that the demonstration was one of the most remarkable ever seen in any country in any cause.With flags flying, bands playing and crowds cheering, the women made a grand show as they marched along.
Women from every state in women
of almost every nationality, society
women and working women, women of the stage and women who have distinguished themselves in numerous other professions, all marched shoulder to shoulder in the common cause.The parade was in five grand divisions. Each division contained fifty sections, and each section was headed by a brass band. Each division was a chapter in the great story which the pageant unfolded—the story of the struggle of woman for liberty and equality throughout the ages.At the head of the procession rode the statuesque leader, Miss Inez Milholland, garbed as a herald and carrying trumpet and banner. After the herald came musicians, a women's band, then a standard bearer, then a mounted brigade. Following these were fifty ushers dressed in blue and gold.The first division of the pageant practiced the idea that the equal suffrage movement is world wide. The next division showed by a series of four floats the progress of the suffrage movement in the United States. Other divisions comprised delegations of women farmers, nurses, educators,
lawyers, physicians, artists, musicians,
writers, factory workers and others to show the many professions and occupations in which women engage.These were followed by the state delegations, some represented by floats and some by marchers. The climax of the division was the big state float
celebrating the triumph of the ten states now having equal suffrage and attempting to show the needs of the other states for the same privilege. In this division appeared also a large delegation of men representing the Men's League for woman suffrage.The firing of the signal gun for the start of the procession was also the signal for the opening of the allegorical pageant on the stage of the Treasury building. As the first music of the approaching procession was heard, Columbia advanced to the head of the steps. Simultaneously with her advance two gigantic American flags were unfurled on either side of the broad platforms which flank the steps.
Columbia then descended to the broad plaza below and, as the pageant
marched slowly by, she summoned
from the classic shades of the heavy ionic pillars that support the roof of the Treasury building, figures representing Justice, Liberty, Charity, Peace and Hope—each represented by a woman well known in society or in the professions. As each character came forth she was attended by an imposing train of graces, pages and subordinate figures. As the tableau was gradually built up around the figure of Columbia, the actors in it went through a series of descriptive and classic dances.The tableaux were artistic and interesting in the extreme, but after all,
it was the procession of marchers that formed the keystone of the demonstration. Long before the procession started Pennsylvania avenue was packed with humanity to a degree which made it almost impossible to move along the sidewalks. The spectators came early, many with chairs and boxes on which to stand, and they brought their lunches. Every window along the profusely decorated avenue
was filled and the public grandstands erected for the inaugural parade had no vacant space. Mrs. Taft and a party of friends occupied seats in the official reviewing stand, while other stands were filled with diplomats, representatives of the judiciary, senators prominent in official life.EURLINGTON GAS SERVICE

Washington, March 3.—William

ton today and was escorted by a reception committee to what is known as the

Whether he arrived in the capacity of the future secretary of state, Mr. Bryan would not admit.
When addressed as "Mr. Secretary," he merely smiled and said "Thank you!"Watches Newspapers.
"I am watching the newspapers with great interest to learn who are to be the members of the next cabinet," said Mr. Bryan."Are you still watching for the announcement of the next secretary of state?""I am very much interested to learn all about that appointment as well as the others," Mr. Bryan replied.Made No Protest.
The Nebraska denied a published report that he was holding up the announcement of the cabinet through a protest against the naming of William G. McAdoo of New York as secretary of the treasury."I heard that story," he said, "as soon as I reached here. All I can say is that I wish men who write such news were compelled to sign their names. That would not aid any weight to their words but would materially lessen the likelihood of disseminate such misinformation."Remains Non-committal.
Mr. Bryan was accompanied by his wife and Josephus Daniels of Raleigh, North Carolina, the reported choice of
Mr. Wilson for secretary of the navy.
Mrs. Daniels also was in the party.As to Mr. Daniels' selection for the cabinet Mr. Bryan said that the "persistent mention of some names as members of the cabinet" led him to regard some reports with considerable credulity. "But I can only say as to a particular individual, he is of age, ask him," said he, referring to Mr. Daniels.Mr. Bryan was met by a committee of citizens headed by Cotter T. Bridge.
Throughout the morning he received friends and political allies informally.CULLOM TO BE CHAIRMAN OF

Newspaper

By John P. Fallon.

One evening a boy came to his father as he was reading THE GAZETTE, and told him that he was going to quit learning
geography, as there was nothing interesting in it.So the father said, "You're going into business after you leave school.""Sure," replied the boy eagerly,
taking for granted that there was no more geography for him."Well, here's what a business man writes today," and he turned to an advertisement about Oriental Rugs, in which the life of the Orient was vividly portrayed."What do you think of that?"
he queried.

"Bully," answered the boy.

"Now, that's geography,"
The boy looked dismayed."There's more to geography," continued the father, "than names of places. You find out why we send to Italy for silks,
to Germany for toys, and why
other nations come to buy from us."Read the advertisements in

—Urged by Board of Control.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 3.—One of the first pieces of legislation proposed in favor of working convicts in road construction is offered by Assemblyman Percy Sawyer of Waukesha. The subject is one that has been receiving considerable attention recently by the state board of control and investiga-

along this line have been made by the board. Sawyer's bill provides that the state board of control and state highway commission are authorized to use state convicts in the construction and maintenance of such roads and highways and they may select. A report of the work must be made to the governor for the use of the legislature of 1915. The idea of the bill is to give a trial and if successful, a further extension of the work will be ordered.For each convict employed the board of control shall set aside for the work performed not less than forty nor more than sixty cents for each ten hour day. This money may in the discretion of the board be paid

Selection of Food Important.

The surest way to keep and restore health is to supply the normal conditions of life, which implies a natural diet containing all the elements of nutrition in true proportion, and based on the proper selection of food for each meal. For it will not do to mix all kinds of otherwise proper food in one meal, but we must make a meal of such foods as are compatible. Otherwise we will turn our stomachs into an acid and gas factory.—The Naturopath.

Fire in Elliott Home.

Between one and two o'clock Saturday afternoon fire broke out in the residence being vacated by L. Elliott and family, in the extreme southwest portion of the city. All furniture was removed and saved but the building was totally destroyed.

SKUNK HUNTERS MAKE VERY GOOD KILLING

Secure Large Number of Fine Pelts at Lake Koshkongong Where Beasts Are Plentiful.

Two hunters from Pt. Atkinson made a rich haul in skunks at Lake Koshkongong this past week, securing twenty fine black pelts alone on Friday last. Their methods were unique and did away with all the tedious and questionable work of the average hunter of the fur bearing animals must undergo to secure the coveted skin. Just at this season of the year the skunks appear to awake from their long winter sleep and are great visitors to each others burrows. They are easily tracked and the Pt. Atkinson hunters found many lairs. Setting their traps inside the mouth of the holes, they then proceeded to crawl out the inmates and as they came to the surface and were caught in the traps, stabbed them behind the shoulder through the heart, with a long, sharp knife. Eleven fine pelts were secured from one locality and nine from an adjacent hill. There appear to be an excess number of these little pests around the lakes and the pelts are mostly black or with thin, narrow black stripes, most covered by furriers. They bring from four to four and a half dollars a pelt when properly cured.

TO DEBATE RACINE TO DECIDE HONORS

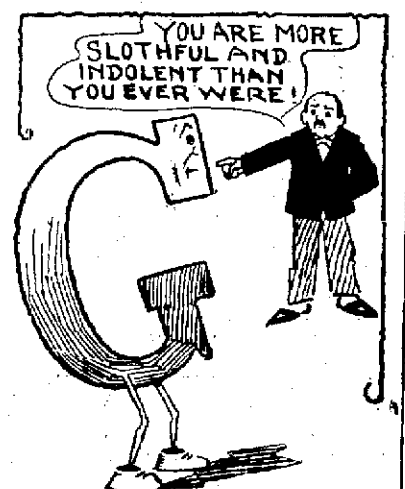

Janesville-Racine Contests on March 14 Will Determine Championship of Beloit College League.

The Racine high school debating teams decisively defeated Savanna, the Illinois champions, last Friday evening, in two strong debates. Their affirmative team remained at home and won over Savanna's negative trio by a 2 to 1 decision, while Racine's negative team defeated the Savanna affirmative team at the latter place by a 3 to 0 decision. As long as Racine won both debates on decision, the percentage basis was not used. The question, as debated, "Resolved, that in the interests of world peace, the United States begin to diminish its proportional naval expenditures," is the question which has been used throughout the Beloit college league debates, and is debatable, as shown by Racine winning on both sides.

Earlier in the season, the Racine teams defeated both the Kenosha high school teams, putting them out of the race. The Racine-Savanna debates were exciting and the decisions came only after careful judging. Savanna was extremely strong on rebuttal. The judges at Racine last Friday night were: Principal Shang, West Division, Milwaukee; Principal Witter, Burlington, and Prof. C. D. Crawford of Beloit college. The judges at Savanna were: Principal Ruess, Freeport; Principal Miller, Polo, Ill.; and Prof. Brown of Beloit college.

This year Illinois only had two schools represented in the league, and consequently but one debate was needed to decide the Illinois winners. This title was won by Savanna, when they defeated Elgin earlier in the season. It was then up to Savanna to defend her title against the Wisconsin champions. But before the locals knew anything concerning the matter, the Beloit college authorities had arranged that Racine debate Savanna, and then the winner to meet Janesville for the final deciding of the championship of both states. Racine won and now Janesville must defeat Racine on March 14th, which is the date agreed upon between the two schools. Through a telephone call yesterday, Prof. Brooks of the Racine high school stated that this date would be satisfactory to him, and that he wished for a double debate. This means that the local school affirmative team will go to Racine, while the local negative team will debate at home. The winners of these debates will be champions of Wisconsin and Illinois, as members of the Beloit College League.

The locals are preparing for these final debates, with much interest and vim. They only defeated Beloit by a narrow margin, but this will not worry them, for they all agree that Beloit had two of the best teams in the league. They are given much credit for defeating them as they did. The debaters are now wearing monograms presented to them, with hopes of having blue ones later in the season to replace the white ones they are now wearing.

LINK AND PIN RAILROAD MEN TO RECEIVE MEDALS FOR SAFETY WORK

Mrs. Edward H. Harriman has declared her intentions of giving the sets of medals to be given annually as a memorial to her husband. These medals will be given to the men of the great railroad systems of this country for the reduction of accidents and development of safety devices. The awards are to be given by the museum of safety, the first award to be made in 1914. Numerous railroads are making efforts to obtain these medals and the Northwestern has taken active steps among their employees to endeavor to win them. The conditions as announced by Mrs. Harriman in awarding the medals are as follows:

"The gold medal will be awarded annually by the American Museum of Safety to the railroad making the greatest progress in safety and accident prevention in proportion to its mileage."

"The silver medal to the active operating head, division superintendent or some one directly responsible for the safety plans of railroad management."

"The bronze medals to the workman, brakeman or any employee of a railroad whom it may be decide has distinguished himself above others in his efforts in contributing something to the general schemes of safety in railway travel."

The giving of these honor tokens is sure to create added interest among the officials of the roads and the fact that laborers are to share in the honor is also a commendable part of the new idea. Local railroad men should make earnest efforts to obtain the bronze medal. The Northwestern and St. Paul companies have demonstrated their efficiency in accident prevention and accidents at the local yards are few and far between. This fact is clearly shown on the Wisconsin division, for the men of that division have been extremely active during the last two years, winning the safety banner in 1911 and ranked second last year losing to the East Iowa division by a fraction of a point.

Work has been started on the Northwestern to keep each of the employee who has distinguished himself in safety work.

ST. PAUL TO PUBLISH A MONTHLY MAGAZINE

To create interest and bring a closer relationship between the working men of the road the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railroad has taken steps to publish a monthly magazine which will contain articles that will be of vital interest to the railroad men. Miss Isabelle Kendall has received the position of editor-in-chief and her office is at the general office at Chicago. All railroad men or those versed in railroad affairs are asked to contribute their opinions on subjects that will be of interest to the railroad men. This is a practically new line for this road but it promises to be a success and cannot help but create interest among the men. It will furnish a new and better way for the officials of the company to bring their views on different affairs before their employees.

NO MORE ROLLER TOWELS TO BE USED BY RAILROADS

By recent regulations which were issued by the interstate commerce commission the railroads have some new sanitary laws which must be observed. The following clause is the one which will cause the men to change from the old roller towel to the more modern one, "the blotter" style.

"Common carriers shall not provide in carriers, vehicles, vessels or conveyances operated in interstate traffic or in depots, waiting rooms, or in any other place used by passengers traveling from one state to another or to the District of Columbia to another state and etc., any towel for use by more than one person." This law became effective March 1, 1913 and the railroads have issued orders to make all concerned abide by this rule and it becomes the conductors' duty to see that this ruling is carried out on the trains.

Chicago & Northwestern TRAINS WERE DELAYED BY DRIFTING SNOW

All trains were delayed to some extent Saturday night and Sunday morning because of the severe wind blowing the snow upon the track. The Wisconsin division snow plow went through Janesville at four thirty, Sunday morning, and all trains previous to the coming of the snow were delayed to a great extent. Train number 502 which is due at 4:20 did not arrive until 8:50 and was delayed considerable time near Shopton. The engines were sent out to pull the train out of the drift. Stock freight 578 was delayed at Harvard, but after losing some time, managed to finish its run unaided.

Train No. 656, due at 6:45 a. m. was two hours late. Because of the danger of being held up by the snow nearly all trains went out double headed. The railroad men welcomed the change in weather and all hope that no further hold-ups on account of snow will happen.

Edward W. Anderson has taken J. J. Burns' place as general yardmaster. Mr. Burns was through Janesville Sunday and superintended the work of extracting the snow bound trains.

Engine 775 took an extra freight train to Belvidere, Engineer Seeman piloting the train.

Engineer Cole is on the night shop run. Engineer Townsend is on the night switch engine.

CAPITAL OF NATION ENDS PREPARATIONS FOR INAUGURATION

Streets and Buildings Gaily Decorated—Ceremonies to Follow Former Precedents.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Washington today is in readiness for tomorrow's inauguration of President Wilson, the first chief executive that the Democratic party has given to the nation in sixteen years. Delegations of Democrats and thousands of other visitors are pouring into the capital and the streets and hotels are crowded with strangers. Streets and buildings are decorated until hardly anything except flags and bunting is visible.

All the mass of plans, worked out in detail by a small army of committees, among whom the labors were divided, are complete, and all that is now needed is propitious weather. In all the leading features of the day's ceremonies the etiquette and precedent established in previous years will be followed. The program may be summarized as follows:

At 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning members of the congressional committee will wait upon Mr. Wilson at the Shoreham Hotel to escort him to the White House. A similar party will wait upon the Vice President-elect, who is also stopping at the Shoreham. The incoming President and Vice President will be greeted by President Taft and in a few minutes will begin the trip to the Capitol.

The President-elect will have as a special guard of honor the Essex County Troop of Newark, N. J., and the Vice President-elect will have a similar escort consisting of the Culver Black Horse Troop from Indiana. President Taft, the President-elect and Senators Crane of Massachusetts and Bacon of Georgia will occupy the Presidential carriage. With the Vice President-elect will ride Senator Overman of North Carolina and Representative Rucker of Missouri.

On arriving at the Senate wing of the Capitol the President and President-elect will go immediately to the President's room and the Vice President-elect to the Vice President's room. Committees will then escort the President and President-elect and the Vice President-elect into the Senate chamber, which will be filled with the members of both branches of Congress and the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The oath of office as Vice President will be administered to Mr. Marshall, who will then deliver his inaugural address and administer the oath of office to the senators-elect. With the organization of the new Senate completed all the participants in the ceremonies will march to the platform erected at the east front of the Capitol, where the big event of the day, the actual swearing in of President Wilson, will take place. The oath of office will be administered by Chief Justice White. President Wilson will then deliver his inaugural address.

When the inaugural address has been concluded and the last cheer has died away President Wilson, Vice President Marshall and ex-President Taft will proceed to the White House for luncheon. Meanwhile the inauguration parade will be formed at the Capitol. By the time the luncheon at the White House is completed it will be time for the leading figures of the day to take their places on the reviewing stand erected in front of the executive mansion.

From a spectacular standpoint of view the parade will be the big feature of the day. It will be viewed by several hundred thousand American citizens, or as many as can pack themselves along the line of march. Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, will act as grand marshal of the procession.

The first grand division of the parade will be composed of the regular military and naval forces, including picked men of the army, navy and marine corps and the cadets from the West Point and Annapolis academies. The next division will be given over to the militia. The entire National Guard of President Wilson's home state will be in line. Other states which will be represented are Massachusetts, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Maryland and Virginia. The governors of a dozen or more states will be in line.

The third division of the parade will be given over to the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations, while the fourth division will be composed of civic organizations, mostly political, from all parts of the country. In the lead will be 1,500 Tammany braves in

Maybe little Johnny Evers isn't altogether the crab he is reputed to be. At least, it is certain that he has a certain fund of humor, even though with a bitter tinge.

A "bone specialist" from the east some time ago thought that he would like to make some easy money by attending the Cubs south on the training trip and treating them for their ills.

In reply Johnny wrote: "None needed yet. Not a member of the team has had a headache since we started south."

Carl Cashion of the Washington Senators is going to be one of the best pitchers in the American league this year. If the prognostication of Chick Gandil is to be respected, Cashion, playing his second season in the big league last year, looked like a comer. In addition to being a pitcher of promise, he was one of the heaviest hitters on the Senators, and broke up many games with his fence-shattering wallops.

Another sign of Chinese unrest has popped up. The baseball team of the University of Hawaii, all the members of which are Celestials, will leave Honolulu, March 18, on a conquest of the United States. It is scheduled to reach San Francisco, March 26, and will end its series of games in this country June 21. The tour will cover in the neighborhood of fifty thousand miles.

Kayo Brown apparently doesn't take very seriously that sleep-potion Joe Rivers gave him on Washington's Birthday. He has signed to meet Bud Anderson of Vancouver in twenty rounds at Vernon on the afternoon of March 15. Kayo is working hard and is optimistic of partly overcoming the loss of prestige which he suffered when Rivers put him away.

Manager McGraw of the New York Giants has about decided to make a pitcher out of Jim Thorpe, Olympic hero. Muggsy has tried Jim in every position on his team, but in none has the redskin shown so well as twirling, although he is greatly lacking in form. The veteran Wilbert Robinson will see what he can do with the athlete.

The Cleveland Naps have just about the most bashful player on record. They call him Abner Poddy. He showed up in Pensacola early one morning a few days ago, and attended both morning and afternoon practices, but was not discovered until the evening, when Fritz Blanning happened to engage him in talk, and the youth asked him if he knew Manager Blanningham. Blanning hastened to introduce Abner to the manager. Poddy is a pitcher, and hails from Dodson, Alabama, where he played independent ball.

WIN FROM RACINE AND TIE FOR LEAD

Exciting Roller Polo Game Goes to Moose Team at the Rink Saturday Night.

In the fastest and most interesting game of the year the Janesville Moose Roller Polo team defeated Racine, at the rink Saturday night, by the score of 2 to 0. The playing was brilliant on both sides and it was only by luck and pluck that Janesville whitewashed the Belle City team. The game was well attended as the fact that it was the critical game of the year brought the fans to see the struggle.

Janesville played the finest game of the year and every man put forth their best efforts. Their team work and close guarding were the main reasons for their success. While Captain Kilmer scored both of the goals, every other player added to the playing strength in the proper manner. Worthington, who tended goal in the absence of Langdon, played a most commendable game for his stopping of the hard drives of the Racine team was the most important feature of the game. In Schaffer and Connelly, Racine found two hard players to pass for their stopping of the visitors' rushes and drives saved several goals. Blunk and Gaffey played sensational games. While the game was bitterly fought and both teams battled with all possible strength, it was free from all dirty and rough playing.

Racine was by no means outclassed and showed excellent team work and passing ability. Their system of playing was to bunch up and try and rush the ball down the floor by pass work but invariably they were met by Connelly or Schaffer who were successful in stopping this form of play.

"Fritz" Reichert, captain and center of the Racine team, is the best player in the league for his shooting from long range is hard and accurate. His dodging and tricks were only too successful, and he could pass or shoot from any angle or position. The entire team were good players and knew the game to a point of perfection. Racine presented a different appearance than their first time here, in addition to a new player they had new suits which were emerald green in color and the contest Saturday night was between the grey and the green.

First Third—The initial part of the game was even and both teams were unable to score. Janesville had several chances to score but stellar work on the part of Jones, Racine's half back, stopped all efforts. Reichert made several long shots in dangerous territory but fine stopping by Worthington saved the day. Bullace, the first rush for the Belle City team proved a whirling in speed but was not able to cope with Janesville in the scrimmage. This third was so close that it left the spectators in doubt as to who would be victorious.

Second Third—Gaffey was placed in Blunk's place and Janesville proceeded to make their first score. After rushing the ball up the floor Kilmer had tried to score but missed, Gaffey obtaining the ball from behind and made a quick pass to Kilmer who shot the ball between the goal tender's ponderous feet for the first score. Reichert put several shots in the local goal but all bounded out. Blunk was placed in Kilmer's place and came near scoring on a hard backward shot but the ball hit the back net and bounded out.

Last Third—Kilmer went back into the game as second rush while Gaffey played first rush. Racine made desperate efforts to tie the score and they were down the floor trying to score. Kilmer got loose and clinched the game with another goal in a close scrimmage play. Racine came back strong and battled hard to score but their only chance was spoiled by Worthington who kicked the ball out of the cage.

This game puts Janesville even with the Racine team and both are tied for leadership. Manager Snyder was well pleased with the locals' playing and the next polo game will be between some good Chicago team. Janesville demonstrated in this game that while she may not have as good individual players as some of the other teams, her team as a unit is superior to any in this state.

Summary.
Racine—1 rush, Bullette; 2 rush, Tiede; center, Reichert; H. B. Jones; goal, Kellogg.
Janesville—1 rush, Kilmer and Gaffey; 2 rush, Blunk, Kilmer and Gaffey; H. B. Connelly; goal, Worthington.
Goals—Kilmer 2.
Referee—R. Bright.
Time of Thirds—15, 10, 15.

BUT ONE PRACTICE FOR BELOIT MEET

High School Five Will Enter College Tournament With a Brilliant Record.

The local high school basketball five, will enter the Beloit College tournament this week, with several straight victories to their credit. So far this season, the locals have run up 319 points to the opponents 71. In three of these games, namely the Stoughton, Jefferson and Lake Mills encounters, the locals have held their opponents scoreless in one half of each game. Stoughton and Lake Mills failed to score in the second half of their contests with Janesville while Jefferson was held to the time of 25 to 0 by the locals in the first half. This merely shows that the locals are extremely good on their guarding. They have done remarkably well in holding all of their opponents to a low score, and look like winners at the tournament this week. The game last Friday with Lake Mills was entirely too easy for the locals. Kennings was the individual star, caging 12 goals, and making six free throws, counting a total of 32 points, or half of Janesville's score. This week but one practice will be held, that being tomorrow night. The team will undoubtedly leave for Beloit early Thursday morning.

PURDUE LOSES IN A CLOSE GAME WITH WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., March 3.—Wisconsin continued its clean record after the hardest battle of the season by defeating the Purdue five by the score of 22 to 19 Saturday night. Both teams fought fiercely from the start to finish. Purdue outplayed the Badgers the most of the game. The Badger makes' lead during the second half but two lucky baskets by Burger in the last few minutes of play won for Wisconsin players. Teeple starred for Purdue and outplayed Van Ghent, which clinches his place on the All Western team. Johnson starred for the Badgers.

BASEBALL NOTES

During the past ten years no less than fifty-one men have managed clubs in the American and National Leagues. Fred Clarke of the Pirates, Connie Mack of the Athletics and John McGraw of the Giants, are the only managers who are now piloting the same teams which they were leading in 1903. Some of the fifty-three varieties have drifted from one club to another in the same circuit, and have occasionally transferred their operations to the other league. The clubs, the managers and the order of their succession follows:

National League:—New York, John McGraw; Pittsburgh, Fred Clarke; Chicago, Frank Selee, Frank Chance, Johnny Evers; Philadelphia, Charley Zimmer, Hugh Duffy, Billy Murray, Charley Doherty; St. Louis, Patsy Donovan, Charley Nichols, Jimmy Burke, John McGloskey, Roger Bresnahan, Miller Huggins; Cincinnati, Joe Kelley, Ned Hanlon, John Gansel, Clark Griffith, Hank O'Day, Joe Tinker; Brooklyn, Ned Hanlon, Patsy Donovan, Harry Lumley, Bill Dahlen; Boston, Al Buckenberger, Fred Tenney, Joe Kelley, Frank Bowerman, Harry Smith, Fred Lake, Fred Tenney, John Kling, George Stallings.

American League:—Philadelphia, Connie Mack; Detroit, Ed Barrows, Bill Armour, George Stallings, Hugh Jennings; Cleveland, Bill Armour, Larry Lajoie, Jim McGuire, George

Evansville has dropped out of the Kity League and will re-enter the Central League the coming season. The Chicago Cubs will play ten games with various hotel teams while the team is training in Florida.

Lew McAllister, "Gabby" Street and Charley Schmidt, three old-time big league back-stops, will work in the Southern League next season. Del Cainor, of the Detroit Tigers, says that Sam Crawford and others need not worry about playing first base, for he intends to do so himself next season.

Pitcher Otto Hess has signed for his second season with the Boston Nationals. Hess won eight straight games last year and also pitched a no-hit, and a 19-inning game.

New York fans are discussing pro and con Ed Chase's ability to play second base. A left-hander covering the key-stone position of the infield will be a decided novelty.

Wirt Canine, the well-known ball player, was recently appointed coach of the Tufts College nine. He formerly played with Boston, Toledo, Toronto, Allentown, Williamsport and Reading.

Jack Egan, former member of Ban Johnson's staff of umpires, is now a jewelry manufacturer at Providence, R. I. Jack claims that he is making more money selling jewelry than he did in baseball.

Back in 1900 a young man joined the Cubs as a pitcher, but was cast aside. Next week the same young man, who is none other than "Rajah" Bresnahan, will rejoin the Cubs as the highest salaried catcher in baseball.

Manager Dick Smith, of the Scranton New York State League team, is strong for Three-I players, the league in which he was formerly a manager. He recently purchased Shortstop Hill and Outfielder Donahue from the Quincy Club.

A NEW CABINET OFFICER.

With the prospect of the establishment of the new cabinet office of bureau of labor it is interesting to note the changes that the advisors of the president have undergone since the organization of this republic. It is the tenth department of government, the others being: state, established 1789; treasury, 1789; war, 1779; navy, 1795; postoffice, 1829; justice, 1789; interior, 1849; agriculture, 1839; commerce and labor, 1903. The office of postmaster-general existed from 1789, but did not become a cabinet position until forty years later.

All of the later additions to the cabinet, the prospective one included, have grown from the bureau stage, as did the postoffice department. The growth of the country has forced upon people and government a larger recognition of the importance of the offices. Thus, as western expansion broadened the nation and multiplied its responsibilities, the interior department was erected upon offices previously under the jurisdiction of the war department. There had been a commissioner of agriculture long before a department of that name was created. The department of commerce and labor was built upon existing bureaus. The department of labor is now to succeed the bureau of labor, the commissioner of labor is to be superseded by the secretary of the department of labor. There were but four departments originally—state, treasury, war and justice—although navy was soon added; and this number sufficed. It is a question whether, with the growing complexities of administration, the limit will long remain at ten. Even now there is a pretty widespread demand for a department of education.

The bureau of labor has been concerned mainly in gathering information relating to the condition of what is called the toiling class. In pursuit of its inquiries, it has necessarily found itself investigating the conduct of the great industries of the nation. As a bureau its province has been simply to gather and disseminate data relating to labor, industrial labor in particular. The department of labor will have broader scope and greater power. It will be able to deal with the entire question of the relationship between the employer and the employed and the relation of both to the country, and it will be clothed with authority to enforce laws intended to define and regulate these relationships. Its creation marks the final step toward division of the three great potential and active forces in the development of the republic—agriculture, labor and commerce.

THE FRATERNITY.

One of the measures up for consideration before the present session of the legislature is one which, if passed, would abolish the fraternity system in the university and schools of the state. Should the law pass, should the fraternities be abolished, it would simply mean the creation of clubs, more exclusive than the present fraternity system. It would really take the jurisdiction out of the hands of the university authorities and give the organizations more license than now exists. Until the university adopts a dormitory system the fraternities will flourish in their present state. As it is now they are subject to faculty supervision and not the dangerous element to society at large that the bill would lead the general public to believe.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean discusses this bill as follows:

"A member of the Wisconsin House named Anderson, a graduate of the state university, has introduced a bill to suppress all secret societies in that and other schools supported by the state. Mr. Anderson, it is understood, was not invited to join a 'Greek letter fraternity' while at Madison."

"Hearings have been held on the bill before the committee on education. The argument presented against the fraternities was a double one. It was alleged, on the one hand, that they provide their members with advantages and opportunities not obtainable by other students. It is also alleged that their influence is immoral and that their members are given to drinking, gambling and other faults."

"It is obvious that these two arguments refute one another. The same associations cannot be both helpful and hurtful. If the fraternities teach young men to drink and gamble they cannot at the same time help them to better work in their studies, as they often do through the advice and assistance given by the older members to the younger."

"President Van Hise appeared before the committee and stated that in his judgment, and especially in view of the fact that the university had no dormitories, the fraternities did more good than harm."

"Assemblyman Sawyer on Friday offered a resolution to refer the whole question to a committee of the faculty of the university to report to the next session of the legislature in 1915. The Wisconsin legislators will do well to proceed carefully and cautiously in this matter. It is one that affects the future of the university."

"Very few Greek letter fraternities exert a harmful influence upon their members. Some are better than others. The best are founded on high ideals and are veritable blessings to their members. Educators who know how to use them wisely find them valuable aids to discipline and scholarship."

"Most of the fraternities at the University of Wisconsin have chapters in other colleges and also alumni organizations. The fraternity question is therefore much more than a local matter. Moreover, there is no alumnus so loyal to his alma mater as the fraternity man, and part of her charm is his fraternity life."

TIME WILL TELL.

In this country, as in Germany, the government has taken such interest in the cure of tuberculosis which Dr. Friedmann claims to have discovered that its experts can be trusted soon to determine the full truth about the powers and promise of the new remedy. In America, as in Europe, the disease which the young German physician is confident he has learned how to conquer is so terrible a foe to human life and its treatment is so unsatisfactory, in thousands of cases, every year, that there can be no lulling in the investigation of Dr. Friedmann's claims, until his discovery is thoroughly tested in the most public manner.

Pulmonary tuberculosis is commonly a slow disease and persistent after it has been checked or partially cured. In the nature of the "white plague" it will take months to determine the permanent results of the Friedmann treatment, but that no time will be lost for lack of public or professional interest is certain. If private investigation and experiments were wanting the work of governments of the highest rank would insure definite results.

All is ready for the big show at Washington and the weather man promises to greet the assembled multitude with cold and raw weather. If he does it is safe to say he will be the first official to lose his head after President Wilson takes office.

The dictators of fashion in New York have decreed that the hem of women's dresses shall be only one inch from the ground. But that won't make them keep it there if they are wearing those new, hand-painted silk stockings.

Why all this fuss about Mr. Wilson's plans to spend part of each day in the president's room in the capitol? Perhaps his only object is to get his usual afternoon nap.

Horses valued at $20,000 were stolen in New York last year. Still all that effort was not needed to put the old horse cars out of business.

The fact that boys snowballed the marching suffragists leads to the conviction that there are no old-fashioned mothers in the parade.

"Let your enemies kiss you," says an Eastern preacher. Perhaps there has been a revolt in the choir and this is an invitation.

March came in like a lion. Now let us see if the old adage that he will go out like a lamb is true.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

Microbes.
A news item states that an eminent professor has just discovered microbes on the handles of baby cabs, which greatly endangers the nurse maids who push them!

Oh, listen to the scientist, fair nurse, before you grab
The old familiar handle of the little baby cab.

He's found the deadly microbes who are making it their lair.
The same as he has found them here and there and everywhere.

He's found them on the doorknob and upon the razor hone;
He's found them on the drinking cup and in the telephone;
He's found them on the dollar bills and on the mantel clock;
He's found them on the phonograph and in the cookie crock.

He's found them in the coffee pot and on the chandelier;
He's found them in the cedar chest and in the chiffonier;
He's found them on the auto horn and on the watch and chain;
He's found them on the necktie pin and on the walking cane.

He's found them on the monkey wrench and on the pocket knife;
The fact is, he's been looking for the microbes all his life.
And it's pretty safe to bet that in the future state,
He'll try to find some microbes clinging to the pearly gate.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.
Society is divided into three classes in our town, six cylinders, four cylinders and runabouts. Most of 'em are self-starters.

Miss Amariyllis Teeter sang a song at the party the other night. She was cheered heartily by several of her near relatives.

The floor of the Hogwallow post-office says so much on one side the postmaster has had to build up the sides on one side of his shoes.
"Mrs. Hank Tumms thought she heard a burglar in the house the other night and she was so scared that all of her hair, which was hanging in the clothes press, turned white."

Somebody asked Lem Higgins the other day if he knew of a good lawyer. He thought quite a while, and finally said he didn't know a really good lawyer, but he could name plenty of able ones.
Ame Hicks has got a new fangled invention which fastens on the hind leg of a mule and prevents him from kicking. Ame says he is sure it will be a success if he lives to get it fastened on, but he will have to be older than Methusee.

The Good Old Times.
Sez Lemuel Hicks, sez he to me,
The times ain't like what they used to be.

When a feller could go with a ten-cent piece
And git enough bacon for to grease
The pancake griddle all nice and neat
And then have a good chunk left to eat.

Then, butter was 15 cents a pound
And we always had enough to go round.

A feller could go with a dollar bill
And a whole blamed grocery order fill.
But nowadays for a five-banknote
A feller can't git morn'n he can tote
Right home in the pocket of his overcoat.

Beats all how far a feller could go
On a dollar back forty years or so.
But prices are gettin' so golum high
We'll all eat hay like a horse time by.
Then good old days we will see no more.

When a man with a dollar could buy
Out a store,
But there is one thing that we must allow,
There wa'n't so many dollars as there are right now.

A Memory.
Oh, what has become of the old-fashioned lover.

Who called for his sweetheart when sleighing was fine,
And took her out riding, by gum, in the outer.

And drove with one arm draped around her waistline?

He's got a new fangled self-starting gas buggy
And riding has lost a' least one of its charms;
Because, don't you see when he's steering the auto,
He has to keep driving with both of his arms.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

A SYMPTOM AND THE DISEASE.

Frank Moss, assistant district attorney of New York county, says that the police graft which has been exposed in the metropolis is but a symptom of graft in big business.

According to Mr. Moss, the little "coppers" see the way the millionaires do it and imitate them on a petty scale.

This is a general indictment of the whole people.

Is graft the symptom of a disease that affects the general body politic?

Do we as individuals or as a nation condone dishonesty?

There is one remark often heard that would make it seem that we do.

When criticism is heaped of a grafting official who has been caught some bystander chimes in with this:

"Aw, what's the matter with you? You would do the same thing in his place."

Would you?

If so, you are in part responsible for the corruption of our politics and business life.

Every time that statement or one like it is made and goes unrebuked it helps that much to break down our moral standards.

For my part, I do not believe that even a majority of our people would "do the same thing in his place."

I believe the majority of men and women are honest, not only from policy, but from principle.

I therefore believe that the remark quoted above is a libel on the human race.

If so, it should be challenged whenever made.

It sometimes happens that a few dealers corrupt a whole trade. Using crooked methods themselves, they place their honest competitors at such a disadvantage that these feel that they must use crooked methods to turn or be driven out of business.

The only way is to stand up for honesty, pick out the crooks and go after them.

If graft is a disease that affects the whole body politic or any considerable portion of it then we are in a bad way.

It is time for honest men to band themselves together and expose and correct the evil.

And let them remember one thing:

Before graft can be permanently driven out of politics it must also be driven out of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Latta entertained the members of the Order of Eastern Star; Principal and Mrs. Puffer and the teachers Friday evening.

PARCEL POST

HOW TO USE IT.

(The new parcel post law includes some perplexing provisions. The Gazette is from day to day presenting a concise explanation of some of the more important sections of the law.)

Printed stamped envelopes, with or without return address can not be mailed as third class matter. They are mailable only as parcel post matter. The post-office regulations permit only one return envelope to be mailed at third class rates (printed matter) and it more are sent they must be mailed by parcel post with parcel post stamps affixed. Regular postage stamps, if used, will be canceled and package "held for postage."

The Gazette Parcel Post Map gives the zone limits, rates and all the provisions of the law. It is a good Geographical map of the United States and for a quick comprehension of the parcel post law is invaluable. This map is now on sale at 25 cents, if called for at the Gazette office, or 35 cents by mail.

both down with the measles.

The people are greatly alarmed over the advent of scarlet fever in town. Miss Vera Reed, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Reed on Durand street was stricken with the dreaded disease Sunday morning. Miss Angeline Douglas, a part of whose house the Reeds occupy, will be fumigated and allowed to go to Berlin.

John Westphal of Sharon was here Saturday.

Clinton is experiencing a mild boom. There is not a vacant desirable house in town and the hotels and restaurants are enjoying unusual good patronage. Several men who are boarding cannot move their families here because they cannot get a house to live in, consequently rent has soared to prices never dreamed of for this town.

A Clappler has purchased the A Bird house and lot on Cross street, occupied by T. F. Moran and family, who will move to the Kelley House on the same street, now occupied by Mr. Clappler and family.

Eugene Gilbert of Rockford was in town Saturday on business.

RECEIVING EXHIBITS AT THE RINK TODAY

MEN IN CHARGE OF THE MID-WINTER FAIR SPEND BUSY DAY GETTING THINGS IN SHAPE.

WEATHER IS FAVORABLE

Indications Promise a Record-Breaking Attendance at One of Best Shows in City's History.

This was a busy day at the Auditorium. Secretary F. E. Lane of the Commercial Club assisted by Edward Amerpohl and a corps of workers were rushed all day long receiving the exhibits, some of which had been entered previously and others which had to be listed for the first time.

Farmers and their wives began to arrive early. Sleigh loads of corn, oats, rye, barley, clover and timothy seed, vegetables of all kinds the pick of the crop raised in the county during the past season were coming in all day. As fast as they came in they were tagged and placed on their proper bench.

The culinary exhibits arrived in wholesale quantities. It was plain that the judges who will begin their work tomorrow, will be confronted with a task which will put their powers of discrimination to the finest test. Delicious cakes, carefully frosted, jars of rich preserves, round, light loaves of golden bread, and tempting biscuits were placed in the show cases.

The weather conditions were most favorable today and resulted in a much larger number of entries than was expected. With continued warm and fair days there will be a record breaking attendance which will mean that the present fair will be the biggest event of the kind in the city's history. Farmers from all over the county are interested in the fair, and the list of prize-winners will by no means be confined to a territory within a short radius of this city.

Secretary Lane expects to have all the exhibits in place by tomorrow morning or the afternoon at the latest. Tuesday will bring the first big crowd of the week, although it is anticipated that Wednesday and Thursday will be the banner days.

In connection with the fair there will be conducted a series of lectures by speakers who are authorities on the subject which they treat. The program will be given as previously announced.

Tuesday—Address: "Dairying," by J. D. Clarke, and an address: "Preparing Pure Bred Seed Grains Previous to Sowing," by George L. Hemingway.

Wednesday—Prof. L. F. Graber, professor of agronomy at the college of agriculture, will talk on "Alfalfa." Thursday—Prof. Hatch of the state agricultural college will speak on "Agricultural Extension."

Friday—Prof. Otis will give an address on "Farm Management."

Thomas Lund received such a sore back that he had to be brought to the station in the patrol wagon. His brother was cut under the left eye. ORGANIZE SUPPORT FOR PROPOSED LAW

Members of Janesville Boat Club Asked to Attend Meeting at City Hall Wednesday Evening.

Members of the Janesville Boat Club have been requested to attend a meeting to be held at the municipal court room at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening called for the purpose of organizing support for a bill recently introduced in the legislature, the purpose of which is to provide that the state's share of the proceeds from the sale of rough fish be devoted to the improvement of the lakes and streams from which they are taken. All those who have cottages on the Rock river, Lake Koshkonong, Lake Kegonsa or other Wisconsin waters where seining is done, will be interested in the success of this measure and are invited to attend the meeting. When it is considered that the net proceeds from one season of carp seining often run into the thousands of dollars it can readily be seen that the state's share is no inconsiderable amount and would go far in the improvement of navigation by dredging, wing dams, locks, or other means.

NEW NICKELS HERE; VARIOUS OPINIONS

"Is It Real Money?" Was Question One Woman Asked When She Received New Coins in Change.

Janesville's first consignment of the newly designed five-cent pieces arrived this morning. One thousand of the new coins, $50 worth, were received at the Rock County National bank and found an immediate demand. The First National bank will receive a consignment on Wednesday.

Various opinions were expressed by customers who received the new coins in change. "Why, is it real money?" exclaimed one woman as she examined several pieces curiously. "Ah, that you give us; don't slip none of them new fangled pool room checks over on me," was the remark of a wise youth. Others gave the coins a passing glance and called them "fifty" or "classy" as they dropped them in their small change pockets.

On one side of the coin is an Indian's head in profile. The likeness is remarkably like the American aborigine with the high cheek bones and high receding forehead with prominent features. The date is given at the base of the coin just underneath the head. On the reverse side is the stamp of the American bison with the inscription, "United States of America," and a plumbus unum," at the top and "five cents" below.

ASK FOR PRIVILEGE OF CHANGING PLEA

Weston's Attorney Enters Plea of 'Not Guilty' for Him—Subject to Change—Draw Jury March 11.

"Not guilty" was the plea entered for John H. Weston, charged with the embezzlement of funds from the Rock River Woolen Mills, by his attorney, John L. Fisher, when the case against him was called for trial this morning. This plea was entered with the qualification that the defendant have the right to change his plea before trial if he so decided. Although it had been expected that the trial would begin today, or a jury be drawn, a continuation was requested. The defendant's counsel has two cases which are expected to come before the circuit court for trial this week and would probably conflict with the Weston case if taken up at once. District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie announced that the state was ready but that business would call him out of town the middle of next week. He requested that the jury be drawn from the body of the county. With the approval of both attorneys, Judge Phipps set the time for the drawing of the jury at nine o'clock Tuesday, March, the jury to be returnable at one o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, March 13.

BELDEN BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT

Waives Right to Preliminary Examination—May Attempt Trial at Present Term of Court.

Louis Belden, charged with the murder of Edward P. Ryan, waived his right to a preliminary examination this morning when his case was called in the municipal court, and was bound over to the circuit court for trial on the first day of the next term, which comes in May. This was done with the understanding that the case may be called for trial at the present term of the court if a plea may be found for it on the calendar. Belden's mother, two sisters and brother-in-law were in the court room this morning, and conferred with him in the office of Judge Phipps. George Nebel, the Madison piano tuner, with whom Ryan attempted to pick a quarrel on the night he met his death, and who it is believed may furnish valuable testimony, came down this morning to act as witness in case an

The Theatre

"MUTT & JEFF."

There must be a first time to everything, and it remained for Gus Hill's "Mutt and Jeff" Company to be the first theatrical company ever to put a circus company completely out of business. These are facts. A well known circus and menagerie was billed to appear in a South Carolina town on the same night with "Mutt and Jeff," the irrepressible. As a consequence, show time came and passed. The band played their overture to three men, two women and two children on the seats. The circus owner, manager and ring master were tearing their hair in mental anguish, with but three dollars in the ticket wagon. To make it short the entire aggregation, audience of seven, performers, band and crew, all "hit the trail" for the Opera House to see the show that could get their "goat" and their anger was subdued to a certain extent by a two and one half hours hearty laugh. But "eats" certainly looked to be in the dim and misty distance after that experience. Half of the money in their "jeans" was spent in a telegram to the advance agent never to bill the circus against "Mutt and Jeff" in any town. That's going some, isn't it? This is but one of the remarkable precedents that have been established by this remarkable attraction, which will exhibit its magnetic drawing power at the Myers Theater for an engagement of one night, Tuesday March 4.

"THE ROSE MAID."

This city is one of the few that will have an opportunity this season of hearing "The Rose Maid," that delightful comic opera sister of "The Spring

Maid." Owing to a shift in the dates at the Colonial Theater in Chicago, Messrs. Werba and Luescher, the producers of "The Rose Maid" were enabled to book several weeks in the smaller cities prior to the opera's return to the East.

The company of nearly one hundred stage favorites who will appear with the opera in this city, is a guaranteed original. Identically the same as it was during its two seasons' engagement at the Globe Theater, New York City and the Colonial, Chicago, but the production is a new one, specially speaking, entire new scenery and costumes having been made for it prior to its leaving the Eastern metropolis a few weeks ago.

"The rosebud garden of girls" is still a big feature of the company. Werba and Luescher, according to the reviewers, having even eclipsed the famous Ziegfeld beauties in their selection of the chorus. They are said to be the most bewitching aggregation of stage women ever assembled in one production. In order to adequately interpret the difficult score of Composer Bruno Granichstaedten, "The Rose Maid" carries a special orchestra of twenty musicians, many of them recruited from the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York city.

A special train carries the company and effects, and is composed of three coaches, a parlor and dining car, three sixty foot baggage cars and a private car for Miss Hages, the daily Hungarian prima donna.

"The Rose Maid" will play at the Myers Theater, Wednesday evening, March 5.

convergence at the pole, and each would include about one-eighth of the planet's surface. But for three-eighths of the night would never pass and, on the remaining three-eighths, the sun would never set, only oscillate east and west of the zenith through an arc of 47 degrees once in every 88 days.

Oceans Boiled, Then Frozen. It would be hard to trace the climatic effect of such an arrangement. It is conceivable that water might exist in its liquid state in the zones of libration, but only for a short time at any one point and that only at sunrise and sunset. If oceans ever existed on Mercury they must long ago have been boiled away and now exist as a sea of ice covering the dark side of the planet from pole to pole.

Mercury has a diameter of about 3,000 miles. Its surface is about one-seventh that of the earth and its volume one-eighth. Its mass and gravity are uncertain. Probably a 200 pound man transported to Mercury would weigh not more than 50 pounds.

Because of its nearness to the sun, Mercury, seen through a telescope, presents the appearance of a little moon, running through all the phases from full to new and back again. The possessor of a three-inch telescope should be able to see it as a crescent on the evenings of the 10th and 11th. Theoretically it should present a half disc at its greatest elongation, but for some reason, probably weak illumination along the terminator, it assumes the crescent form.

New Stars in the East. Bootes (The Huntsman) and Virgo (The Virgin) are chief among the new constellations in the Eastern field this month. Spica, the principal star in Virgo, rises a little to the south of the east point. It makes its appearance at about 9 o'clock at the beginning of March and, by the end of the month, is well above the horizon. It is a pure white star of rather less than the first magnitude and is a favorite with nurseries for determining longitude.

Arcturus, principal star in Bootes, affords a fine color contrast with Spica. It has a pronounced ruddy hue, yellow with a tinge of red. Among stars visible in these latitudes Sirius alone surely surpasses it in brightness. Capella, in Auriga, and Vega, in the Lyre (now below the horizon), are its only rivals North of the celestial equator. But Arcturus is a far mightier sun than either of the others, one of the greatest in the universe. Moreover, it is one of the swiftest moving of the fixed stars, so-called. Its speed is between 500 and 300 miles a second. Yet it will require 1,000 years to change its position in the heavens by a single moon-breadth, so far does it lie in the depths of space.

Arcturus is readily found by following out the curve of the handle of the Big Dipper for 25 or 30 degrees. There is no other very bright star in its immediate neighborhood.

Dinner Stories

A sad-looking man entered the shanty where the workmen were eating their lunches. He was holding a red can.

"Hey, fellows," he saluted them, "look at this can of powder I picked up outside. I've a mind to blow me self up."

"Aw, cut out that stuff and heat it out of here," ordered the foreman. The man looked around, then walked deliberately over to the stove, opened the door and thrust the can inside.

There was a yell of dismay and in a moment the shanty was empty.

Ten minutes later the runaways returned. The can was lying harmlessly on the fire and the sad-looking man was gone. So were their lunch pails.

The will of the Earl of Pembroke, of the English civil war notoriety, does not portray a mind exactly in the state it should be, when he proceeds to say: "As regards my other horses, I bequeath them to my Lord Fairfax, that when Cromwell and his council take away his commission he may still have some horses to command. Above all, but not my body beneath the church porch, for I am, after all, a man of birth, and would not that I should be interred there where Colonel Pride was born."

Lord Dufferin delivered an address before the Greek class of the McGill University, about which a reporter wrote: "His lordship spoke to the class in the purest ancient Greek, without mispronouncing a word or making the slightest grammatical solecism." "Good heavens!" remarked Sir Hector Langevin to the late Sir John A. Macdonald, "how did the reporter know that?" "I told him," was the Conservative statesman's answer. "But you don't know Greek." "True, but I know a little about politics."

Our government full soon will change—March 4 will soon be here—and politics untried and strange in action will appear. O, shall we in the Wilson reign be prosperous and gay, or shall we murmur and complain that hard times make us gray? It all depends on divers things, and sundry things as well, as whether grief our bosoms wrings or joys shall make us yell. The man who buckles down to work for tears will have no cause; but woe will haunt the idle shirk, who'll clamor for more laws. We'll never have a government that pilot with the feet of idlers, soaked in discontent, along to busy street. We'll never have a government that will beat down and smash the bug, cheerful, hustling gent who works and saves his cash. The man who looks to Washington for board and bed and clothes will reach the poorhouse when he's done complaining of his woes. No government, at our behest will strew our path with flowers; while Woodrow Wilson does his best, we also should do ours.

THE HEAVENS IN MARCH.

It will be possible this month to catch a glimpse of the elusive planet Mercury. On March 11th at two o'clock in the morning, Washington time, this smallest of planets reaches its greatest eastern elongation. On the evenings of the 10th and 11th it will linger above the western horizon for an hour and a quarter after sunset.

So few persons have ever seen this shyest member of the solar family that such an opportunity should not be slighted. It is an astronomical legend that even Copernicus was denied the pleasure of seeing Mercury, an exceptionally interesting body in many ways.

Mercury never reaches a distance of more than 28 degrees from the sun and seldom gets outside of the twilight zone, which accounts for its being so infrequently seen with the naked eye. On the present occasion it gets only a little more than 18 degrees away from the sun and the twilight lasts for some minutes after its setting. Nevertheless, if one knows where to look, it should be possible to pick the planet up before it disappears below the horizon, especially with the aid of an opera glass.

How to Find the Planet. Since the sun on the 10th and 11th sets about six o'clock, the position of Mercury cannot be shown on the map. But, at sunset of the 10th, the sun, Mercury, the moon and Venus will lie nearly in line along the ecliptic in the order named, and, as the sun sinks lower and lower below the rim of the earth, it will be possible to fix Mercury's position with reference to the moon and Venus, as well as by the point where the sun has disappeared. Remember that Mercury is 18 degrees from the sun. It will be about 14 degrees from the moon. Between the moon and Venus will be about 11 degrees.

By the evening of the 11th the moon will have passed a little beyond Venus, but otherwise the alignment of the four bodies will have changed little. The proximity of Venus and the four-day-old moon will afford a beautiful spectacle.

Under favorable "seeing" conditions Mercury grows brilliantly in the twilight, being intrinsically brighter than a star of the first magnitude. It is of course far inferior to Venus, now almost at its maximum brilliancy, which it attains on March 19th. Mercury's light is slightly reddish, while that of Venus is of a dazzling whiteness. By the evening of the 11th Mercury will have started back towards the sun and, on the night of April 24th, will have attained its greatest Western elongation. In this case more than 27 degrees, and will be visible as a morning star.

Can Life Exist on Mercury?

The most interesting question that can arise about any planet is always: "Can it sustain life?" Naturally there can be no direct evidence of life's existence on a planet so difficult to observe as Mercury, whatever may be true of such a body as Mars, with its "canals" and "bridges." But inferences can be drawn from the physical condition of a planet. In the case of Mercury it must be admitted that most of the inferences are negative.

Negative indications are afforded by the low "albedo" or reflecting power of Mercury. It has been shown that this planet absorbs more than four-fifths of the fierce sunlight that beats down upon its surface, only ten per cent of it being reflected into space. Now, on account of its nearness to the sun, Mercury receives on an average nearly seven times as much of the solar radiations as does an equal area of the earth's surface, and the earth reflects 30 per cent or more of the sun's rays. So it would seem that Mercury's temperature must be constantly above the boiling point of water, and, without liquid water life, as we know it, cannot exist.

It is true that the effects of solar radiance may be profoundly modified by atmosphere, but Mercury's low albedo argues that the planet must possess the thinnest of atmospheric veils. A cloud-wrap globe like Venus reflects fully 65 per cent of the light that reaches it. In all the planets a high albedo goes with a dense, vapor-filled atmosphere. But Mercury's albedo is only .17, almost the same as that of the dead, airless moon. Some calculations would make it even lower. And yet Mercury is seemingly not entirely devoid of an atmosphere. Markings upon its surface are obliterated at times under the observer's gaze as if by some aerial screen. Besides there are spectroscopic indications, dubious ones, of the presence of water vapor in such atmosphere as may exist.

Its Orbit and Rotation.

The eccentricity of Mercury's orbit subjects it to great changes of temperature. At its nearest approach it is within 28½ millions of miles of the sun. Its greatest distance is 43½ millions of miles. This means that, in the course of its 88-day year, Mercury receives sometimes only four times, at other times nine times as much solar radiance as the earth.

Does Mercury revolve upon its axis more than once in its year? Such observers as Schiaparelli and Lowell say it does not and that consequently the planet turns always the same face to the sun, just as the moon turns always the same face to us. Probably the majority of astronomers have accepted their conclusions as correct, but others are still skeptical. If they are right, Mercury at once becomes, according to human standards, an uninhabitable planet.

For the succession of day and night upon a planet results from its independent axial rotation and under the conditions described by Schiaparelli, Mercury would have no days, only years. And, so long as these years continue, one side of the planet must be exposed continuously to the scorching sun, while the other must be plunged into an endless night, with Venus and the earth as its brightest luminaries. It is true that, owing to the great eccentricity of Mercury's orbit, there would be two zones, stretching from pole to pole between the regions of perpetual day and night, where the sun would rise and set once in each Mercurial year. Each of these zones would be about 1,200 miles broad at the equator and would follow the lines of longitude to their

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"AND FURTHER," she declared it her belief that when a man had found his true mate, such a union would be for life—it could not be otherwise. And the man holding his mate by the excellence that was in him instead of by the aid of the law would be placed lower like on his good behavior—and be a stronger and manlier being."

If your marriage were a trial marriage and tomorrow the day to decide whether to make it permanent or not, would you marry your husband or wife again?

Isn't that a thought provoking question? And here's another quite as worth thinking about—Would your husband or wife marry you over again?

Of course, because of the third party to every marriage, the little unborn soul that may find its chance of existence through this union, trial marriages are out of the question. But I fancy that if they were practical, there'd be a great deal more self-control and thought for others and appreciation in our homes and somewhat less discontent and chafing in our hearts than we now have.

Only I suppose to make the idea worth anything, the trial part of the marriage could not be over at the end of a year as is usually proposed. To keep the atmosphere right, we'd have to make the union like a perpetual trial marriage—say like the lease of a house, taken for twelve months at a time and renewable at the end of each year with the approval of both parties.

I once read an article on this subject in which the author brought out the idea that if this were tried we should have a great many surprises in finding out how few couples would remain.

Do you know, I have a kind of a notion that we'd be just as apt to be surprised the other way.

When two married folks are looking forward to a life union with each other, they may see each other's faults and annoying habits in the foreground, but if these same people were brought face to face with the possibility of a separation, don't you think the perspective would change in the twinkling of an eye, and the virtues and attractions that first drew them to each other come back into prominence?

It is an old story that no matter how keen our gratitude when we first receive them, we soon cease to be grateful for the blessings which we are accustomed to and feel sure of. Who knows but that a renewed appreciation of each other, as well as renewed efforts to stand well in each other's eyes, might not be the result, if there were any question about renewing the lease at the end of the year.

Yes, I know that some of my reader friends are holding up their hands in horror at my even speaking of this subject. Forgive me, my friends. I know it's totally impossible and I haven't the vaguest idea of advocating it, but all the same, I think it would be a thought provoking exercise for some married folks to consider the two questions I asked at the beginning.

Especially the second.

Buttons and Thanks

I STOPPED in at Mrs. Watson's before I came here," the club-woman was saying. "And Mr. Watson was rampaging around because a button was missing from some part of his apparel."

"Men do froth at the mouth about buttons, don't they?" laughed the other. "If a button is off, a man thinks he is singled out by high heaven for misfortune."

"Yes, if some awful catastrophe had overtaken the family, I don't believe Mr. Watson could have been more worked up about it. But Mrs. Watson took his rampaging quite meekly. She got her needle and thread and at once sewed the missing button on. I don't know how the garment got by her keen eye with that button lacking. But I couldn't help wondering, if she had ever got as much credit for the hundreds of buttons she has sewed on, as she did discredit for that one button that was missing."

"Believe me," said the other, "she never has. We women could sew buttons on till Gabriel blows his horn, and never a word would be said about it. But let a button be missing, and the howl that goes up to heaven fairly rends the skies."

"It's the same way about stockings," assented the other. "You can darn stockings from one year's end to the other, and all that the family does is to wear holes again. But just let the darned bag be neglected a week or so, and the hosiery not be in its proper place in bureau drawers, and what a wail is raised."

"It's a case, I guess, of virtue being its own reward."

"Yes, and that's about the only reward virtue ever does get. That's the reason why there is no grand rush for it as a personal possession."

"I wonder why we are so unappreciative of the little, everyday things done for us by our family. They are the things we ought to appreciate the most. If a neighbor came in and sewed our buttons on, or darned our stockings, we would be loud in our expression of thanks. But if mother or wife does it, we say nothing."

"I think every one, man or woman, ought to sew on his own buttons, anyway," said the other woman. "I am training my boys to sew on buttons and darn stockings."

"Good for you. What prizes they will be as husbands. I think I'll give my girls a hint."

And then the two women laughed, a happy little laugh at the whimsical idea.

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

two lines on this put a layer of oysters, season with salt, pepper and bits of butter or one-half cup if melted in all. Then put over a layer of crumbs and another of oysters; season as before, and the last one of crumbs and melted butter over the top. Now turn milk over the top, letting it go quickly to the bottom. Bake in a hot oven thirty minutes.

Corned Beef. Select a neat piece of corned beef with a nice steak of fat over the top. Wash it well and put into the kettle. Cover with cold water, add three cloves and a small bay leaf and slice of onion. Set over the fire and bring slowly to the boiling point and skim. Now simmer if it is a solid piece of meat which weighs about 3 1/2 pounds, about three hours, or until tender. It must simmer, however, and not boil. Then let cool in the water in which it was boiled. If it is desired to be used cold. Fireless cookers are perfect for cooking corned beef. The remnants of corned beef, with potatoes, make most excellent hash.

Old Reliable Sponge Cake. Materials—Eggs, 5; sugar, 1 1/4 cups; pastry flour, 1 1/4 cups; juice and rind of one lemon.

Directions—Beat the whites of the eggs until perfectly dry. Beat in the other bowl the yolks until they are light and lemon-colored; gradually add the sugar, beating all the while, and then add the juice and rind of the lemon. Now cut and fold in half the whites and then, gradually, the flour; then the remaining whites and turn at once into a baking pan lined on the bottom with well-buttered paper. Bake in a very moderate oven until it has risen to its full height, then increase the temperature and brown about 50 minutes. Too hot an oven at first will ruin any sponge cake.

Curd Index helps—Fingers are never or grated with the lemon peel if it is cut in halves, the juice squeezed out and then held for grating with the fore and middle finger inside of the lemon.

Bread crumbs may be kept indefinitely in a dry place in a can with a perforated top.

Material—Potatoes, six; cucumber, one; onion, one; French dressing, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Directions—Wash and boil the potatoes with their skins on. When done peel and cut in cubes. Season while hot with a French dressing and set aside to cool. When ready to use peel and slice the cucumber in cubes, grate the onion and mix well with one-half cup of mayonnaise, which has been well blended with one-fourth cup of whipped cream. Serve on lettuce and garnish with sliced beets and hard boiled eggs, or the garnish may be omitted.

Escaloped Oysters. Material—Oysters, one pint, cracker crumbs, butter, pepper and salt, milk, one-half pint.

Directions—Butter a baking dish and on the bottom put a layer of bread or cracker crumbs, not rolled light and lemon-colored; gradually add the sugar, beating all the while, and then add the juice and rind of the lemon. Now cut and fold in half the whites and then, gradually, the flour; then the remaining whites and turn at once into a baking pan lined on the bottom with well-buttered paper. Bake in a very moderate oven until it has risen to its full height, then increase the temperature and brown about 50 minutes. Too hot an oven at first will ruin any sponge cake.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

IT IS a good thing to be rich, and a good thing to be strong, but it is a better thing to be beloved of many friends.

—Euripides.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DINNER?

To the methodical, systematic housewife, who plans her meals often a week in advance, there is a vast field for individuality and ingenuity in the planning of a meal; but she, the thrifless, indolent woman, who spends her time in needless ways and a few moments before the meal time tears into the house or the kitchen to prepare or see to the preparation of the food, there is a limited field, as preparation and thought are both necessary to have a well balanced meal, together with variety and economy.

Steals and chops are often the poor man's food, because the wife does not take time to prepare in the thousand appetizing ways the coarser, cheaper cuts of meat. Long, slow cooking develops the flavor, and that long cooking must be planned for, often, the day before.

It should be the pride of every housekeeper to work toward getting as much as possible out of the time, money and energy spent.

Beef Rolls—Cut thin, round steak into oblong pieces, and on each piece place a spoonful of sausage meat; roll up and tie with a string. Dredge with flour, pepper and salt, brown in pork fat and put into a casserole. To the fat add a tablespoonful of flour; stir until brown, add a pint of water and cook until smooth. Season and pour over the rolls, cover and simmer in the oven for two hours. Take off the strings before serving.

Parsnip Fritters—A very nice fritter, and one that is easy to prepare, may be made from cold cooked parsnips. Season and mold the parsnips and dip in a thin fritter batter, drop in hot fat and fry; drain on paper and serve hot. Many people who refuse the vegetable fried will enjoy it this way.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—(1)—Can I get money that I loaned without a lawyer, if I have his I. O. U.? (2)—Which is the larger city—New York or London? (3)—I am of age and owe a friend money. Can he stop my pay? (4)—What can be done to stop a man from drinking? J. C. D.

(1)—If he is not a man of honor, you may have to sue him. (2)—London. (3)—If you are not of age your wages may be claimed by your parents or guardian, and your guardian can hold your parents or guardian responsible for your debt. (4)—There are drinking-cure institutes in all the large cities. If a man hasn't enough will power and self-respect to quit drinking, he ought to go to one of these places.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15 and in love with a nice boy. He writes notes to me. He has no brother nor sister, and I have a lot of friends and they go out every night. I do like to go to moving pictures and am silly over Western pictures. Please advise me.

WANTED. My dear girl, you aren't a bit in love with any boy. You just like this one a whole lot as a very good friend. If he has no brother or sister, he needs a good friend and I hope you will be real sisterly to him.

Moving pictures do no harm if they are the right sort. Western pictures are really not true to life. Things in the west are about the same as they are here, though perhaps people on the western ranches work harder than we do, and have fewer comforts.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married, but we only lived together a short time. My husband left last October and wrote me saying he could never return. I have no money to get a divorce. Am I free to have gentleman company? R. A. No. You are still a wife and have no right to encourage men who might think you eligible for marriage. Take your husband's letter to some good judge in your town and ask him to help you. He will, I am sure.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of 29, and have been keeping steady company with a girl about two years my junior. Her aunt often speaks as if she wants me to marry her. Although I haven't as yet made this girl any proposal that she knows of, yet I have some serious intentions. Since I am not ready, what shall I say to her aunt?

TROUBLED. Tell the aunt the truth. You are too young to engage yourself to marry and you probably are not able to support a wife or make her happy. Meaning, don't monopolize the girl. Give her as much freedom as you want for yourself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—What color should trim a silver gray, mesaline dress for spring? (2)—I have a pair of gray buckskin slippers and have had them cleaned twice, but they look as though they had never been cleaned. Could I get a polish for them? (3)—What color of dress would be fashionable for a lady of 10 for spring wear? WIFE.

(1)—A becoming shade of pink, or corse. (2)—I know of no polish. They can be dyed any color darker than they are now. (3)—Various shades of dark blue, tans and grays are fashionable. White is very "swell."

WIFE OF ANTARCTIC EXPLORER SCOTT GRIEF-STRIKEN OVER HUSBAND'S DEATH

Since her arrival at Christ Church, New Zealand, a few days ago Mrs. Robert F. Scott, wife of the antarctic explorer who met death while returning from an expedition to the south pole, has been grief-stricken. She had come from London to New Zealand with her little son, Peter, to meet the returning explorer. Being on the ocean, she did not hear of her husband's death until several days after the news had reached the world at large.

Mrs. Robert F. Scott and son Peter.

Mrs. Scott herself will be known as Lady Scott, King George having bestowed on her the same rank, style and precedence as if her husband had been nominated a knight commander of the Bath, as he would have been had he survived.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Clean White Furs and Bearskin Coats. TO CLEAN WHITE FURS, heat cornmeal in pan as hot as hands can bear it, then put furs in pan of meal and wash same as with water, keeping the meal hot. After a few minutes hard rubbing, shake furs vigorously to get the meal out and they will be white as snow.

TO CLEAN CHILDREN'S WHITE BEARSKIN COATS—Rub them with stale bread all over. As soon as one piece of bread gets dirty take a clean piece. Continue this until the whole coat has been gone over thoroughly, then take a perfectly clean comb and comb the fur right way. This will make the coat as white as snow and look like new.

Things Worth Knowing. BEFORE USING TEA, spread it on a sheet of paper and place in warm (not hot) oven for 10 to 15 minutes. Tea will go much further and flavor be much improved. Saves considerably on every pound of tea.

IN CUTTING OUT very thin goods, lay goods between two sheets of thin paper, then place pattern on top and cut through all. I have tried this with chiffon and with net over waist and I made myself and it worked very well.

IN BAKING CAKES, before putting in the oven pound the pan on the table three times to break gas bubbles, and place toothpicks or splints in the center and each corner of the pan and the cake will not fall. Do not open

An Odd Barometer. Take a glass preserve jar and an oil flask. Fill the former three-fourths full of water and put the flask, neck down, into the jar. If the weather is to be fine the water will rise high in the flask. This does not make a pretty ornament, but it is a very reliable barometer.

Cream Peppermints. Stir together two cups of granulated sugar, a very little cream of tartar and half cup water until sugar is dissolved. Boil until mixture strings from spoon. Remove from fire, add one teaspoon essence of peppermint and stir until candy locks white. Drop from spoon on waxed paper.

The Table. SALMON TIMBALES—Drain one tall can salmon. Remove all particles of skin and bone. Mash fine with fork. Add three beaten eggs without separating. Season with salt and pepper, one teaspoon lemon juice and one teaspoon parsley chopped fine.

Butter six individual molds, fill them and place in baking pan filled half full of boiling water. Bake 15 minutes.

When ready to serve remove from molds, put on platter and cover with half pint cream sauce to which has been added the yolk of one egg just

DIAMOND-HEELED LADY GOES TO GOTHAM TO MAKE THE SMART SET GASP AGAIN

Mrs. Charles H. Anthony.

Muncie, Ind.—Mrs. Charles H. Anthony, the Muncie woman of magic and millions—she who put the diamonds in heels—has gone to New York again with another dazzling, sparkling, scintillating surprise to make Gotham smart society gasp, hesitate, then rush to follow.

What is it? Nobody knows just now, though the whole world is likely to be apprised soon through the newspapers, which accorded Mrs. Anthony whole columns and pages a year or two ago when she went a-clicking down Peacock Alley with those diamond heels. It was a great sensation; but when Mrs. Anthony left here not long ago she whispered to her most intimate friends that she was going to "shock" smart society this time even more than she did before.

Which will be going some. The world in general knows Mrs. Anthony only as "the lady with the diamond heels." It thinks of her as a woman of wealth who dearly loves to do sensational things—things that make people talk about her. She may be cultured and refined and all that, but the world doesn't know it. The world, therefore, should be interested in the remarks of a woman who knows Mrs. Anthony intimately.

Won Prize For Garden. "She is beautiful, refined, studious, broadminded and unselfish," said this friend. "She is far too modest and good humored to refute the foolish criticisms made of her last year. Her friends know, however, that she is a woman in a thousand—a veritable lady of the world. It is true she loves beauty, but personal adornment comes last with her, not first, as seems to be thought in the east."

Diamonds Her Birthstone. So you see life is something more than diamond heels to Mrs. Anthony. After all, her love of diamonds is explained by the fact that she was born in April, dedicated "to the peerless sparkler." She considers the diamond the only stone that is "alive," and will have no colored jewel in her possession.

The surprise which she is shortly to spring on Gotham society will be a diamond one. Her jeweler is just putting the finishing touches on it. And it won't be diamond heels. What will it be? Guess!

before serving.

IMITATION DEVIL'S FOOD—One-fourth cup shortening (any kind), one cup sugar, two cups flour, three level teaspoons baking powder, three heaping teaspoons cocoa, a little salt, yolk of one egg (use white for frosting; you need not use egg). Put all ingredients together (except egg) and rub like pie crust, adding egg after wetting mixture with water in which you can hold your hand (not boiling). Make rather thin batter and bake in four pans. Flavor to taste. Use any filling and leave out egg.

Making a Little Go a Long Way. One day I decided to have just a little stew for dinner, so I bought a lamb's breast weighing about 1 1/2 pounds.

A couple of my friends unexpectedly came in and decided to stay for the evening. I could not get more meat, so I finally decided to put a dressing in the lamb and roast it.

I slit a large pocket under the entire length of meat, put in a chicken dressing, sewed up edges. It browned a golden brown (except egg) and tasted just like chicken when taken out of oven.

My friends said it was the finest dinner! It certainly was a very cheap one, lamb roast costing 6 to 8 cents a pound.

Have the butcher cut a large pocket and you can get into it five times the amount of dressing you can get into a chicken. Slices fine either cold or warm. I cannot get my husband tired of it. He says it tastes like turkey to him, especially when lamb is tender.

Her Explanation. "You asked what the trump was at least a dozen times last night." "Yes, Charles, dear. But I didn't really have to. I did that to show I was taking an interest in the game."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Gossiping on the phone certainly jars on Mother.

The STOLEN SINGER

by MARTHA BELLINGER

Mrs. Stoddard was pouring something into a measuring glass. Agatha was standing by the window, looking out into the blue night; and Aleck could be seen through the half-open door, pacing up and down the hall. Doctor Thayer turned to his sister.

"Give him his medicine on the half-hour, and then you go to bed. That man Hand will do now." Then he went to the door and addressed Aleck. "Well, Mr. Van Camp, unless something unexpected turns up, I think your cousin will live to jump overboard again."

Offhand as the words were, there was unmistakable satisfaction, happiness, even triumph in his voice, and he returned Aleck's hand-clasp with a vice-like grip. His masculinity ignored Agatha, or pretended to; but she had followed him to the door. As the old man clasped hands with Aleck, he heard behind him a deep, "O Doctor!" The next instant Agatha's arms were around his neck, and the back of his bald head was pressed against something that could only have been a cheek. Surprising as this was, the doctor did not stampede; but by the time he had got clear of Aleck and had reached up his hand to find the cheek, it was gone, and the arms, too, Susan Stoddard somehow got mixed up in the general Te Deum in the hall, and for the first time, now that the fight was over, allowed her feminine feelings—that is, a few tears—to come to the surface.

Aleck, however, went to pieces, gone down in that species of mental collapse by which deliberate, judicial men become reckless, and strong men become weak. He stepped softly back into the bedroom and leaned again over the curved footboard, his face quite miserable. He went nearer, and held his ear down close to the bedclothes, to hear for himself the regular beating of the heart. Slowly he convinced himself that the doctor's words might possibly be true, at least. He turned to Hand, who had come in and was adjusting the shades, and asked him: "Do you believe he's asleep?" In the tone of one who demands an oath.

"Oh, yes, sir; he's sleeping nicely," Mr. Van Camp. I saw the change the moment I came in."

Aleck still hesitated to leave, fearful, apparently, lest he might take the blessed sleep away with him. As he stood by the bed, a low but distinct whistle sounded outside, then, after a moment's interval, was repeated. Aleck lifted his head at the first signal, took another look at James and one at Hand, then light as a cat he darted from the room and down the stairs, leaving the house through one of the tall windows in the parlor. Mr. Chamberlain was standing near the plant bushes, his big figure outlined dimly in the darkness.

"Shut up!" Aleck whispered fiercely, as he ran toward him. "He's just got to sleep, Chamberlain; gone to sleep, like a baby. Don't make an infernal racket!"

"Oh, I didn't know. Didn't mean to make a racket," began Chamberlain, when Aleck plumped into him and shook him by the shoulders.

"He's asleep—like a baby!" he reiterated. And Chamberlain, wise comrade, took Aleck by the arm and tramped him off over the hill to settle his nerves. They walked for an hour arm in arm over the road that lay like a gray ribbon before them in the night, winding up slantwise along the rugged country.

Dawn was awake on the hills a mile away, and by and by Aleck found tongue to tell the story of the night, which was good for him. He talked fast and unevenly, and even extravagantly. Chamberlain listened and loved his friend in a sympathy that spoke for itself, though his words were commonplace enough. By the time they had circled the five-mile road and were near the house again, Aleck was something like himself, though still unusually excited. Chamberlain mentioned casually that Miss Reynier had been anxious about him, and that all his friends at the big hotel had worried. Finally, he, Chamberlain, had set out for the old red house, thinking he could possibly be of service; in any case glad to be near his friend.

"And, by the way," Chamberlain added, "you may be interested to hear that accidentally I got on the track of that beggar who ate the hermit's eggs. Took a tramp this morning, and found him held up at a kind of sailor's inn, waiting for money. Grouchy old party; no wonder his men shipped him."

Aleck at first took but feeble interest in Chamberlain's discoveries; he was still far from being his precise, judicial self. He let Chamberlain talk on, scarcely noticing what he said, until, suddenly, the identity of the man whom Chamberlain was describing came home to him. Agatha's story flashed back in his memory. He stopped short in his tracks, halting his companion with a stretched-out forerunner.

"Look here, Chamberlain," he said, "I've been half-dumb and didn't take in what you said. If that's the owner or proprietor of the Jeanne d'Arc—a man known as Monsieur Chatelet, French accent, blond, above medium size, prominent white teeth—well, want him right away. He kidnapped Miss Redmond in New York, and I shouldn't wonder if he kidnapped old Jim and stole the yacht besides. He's a bad one."

Mr. Chamberlain had the air of humoring a lunatic. "Well, what's to be done? Is it a case for the law? Is there any evidence to be had?"

"Law! Evidence!" cried Aleck. "I should think so. You go to Big Simon, Chamberlain, and find out who's sheriff, and we'll get a warrant and run him down. Heavens! A man like that would sell his mother!"

Chamberlain looked frankly skeptical, and would not budge until Aleck had related every circumstance that he knew about Agatha's involuntary flight from New York. He was all for going to the red house and investigating Agatha herself, but Aleck refused to let him do that.

"She's worn out and gone to bed; you can't see her. But it's straight, you take my word. We must catch that scoundrel and bring him here for identification—to be sure there's no mistake. And if it is he, I'll be hot enough for him."

Chamberlain doubted whether it was the same man, and put up objections serially to each proposition of Aleck's, but finally accepted them all. He made a point, however, of going on his quest alone.

"You go back to the red house and go to bed, and I'll round up Eggs. I think I know how the trick can be done."

Aleck was stubborn about accompanying Chamberlain, but the Englishman plainly wouldn't have it. He told Aleck he could do it better alone, and led him by the arm back to the old red house, where the kitchen door stood hospitably open. Sallie was at work in her pantry. The kettle was singing on the stove, and the milk had already come from a neighbor's dairy.

Sallie's temper may not have been ideal, but at least she was not of those who are grouchy before breakfast. She served Aleck and Chamberlain in the kitchen with homely skill, giving them both a wholesome and pleasant morning after their night of gloom.

"You can't do anything right all day if you start behindhand," she replied when Aleck remarked upon her early rising. "Besides I was up last night more than once, watching for Miss Redmond. The young man's sleeping nicely, she says."

She went cheerfully about her kitchen work, giving the men her best, womanlike, and asking nothing in return, not even attention. They took her service gratefully, however, and there was enough of Eve in Sallie to know it.

"By the way, Chamberlain," said Aleck, "we must get a telegram off to the family in Lynn." He wrote out the address and shoved it across Sallie's red kitchen tablecloth. "And tell them not to think of coming!" adjured Aleck. "We don't want any more of a swarmy here than we've got now." Chamberlain undertook to send the message; and since he had contracted to catch the criminal of the Jeanne d'Arc, he was eager to be off on his hunt.

"Good-by, old man. You go to bed and get a good sleep. I'll stop at the hotel and leave word for Miss Reynier. And you stay here, so I'll know where you are. I may want to find you quick, if I land that bloomin' beggar."

"Thanks," said Aleck weakly. "I'll turn in for an hour or so, if Sallie can find me a bed."

Mr. Chamberlain made several notes on an envelope which he pulled from his pocket, gravely thanked Sallie for her breakfast and lifted his hat to her when he departed. Aleck dropped into a chair and was stupidly staring at the stove when Sallie returned from a journey to the pump in the yard.

"You'll like to take a little rest, Mr. Van Camp," she said, "and I know just the place where you'll not hear a sound from anywhere—if you don't mind there not being a carpet. I'll go up right away and show you the room before I knead out my bread." So she conducted Aleck to a big, clean attic under the rafters, remote and quiet. He was exhausted, not from lack of sleep—he had often borne many hours of wakefulness and hard work without turning a hair—but from the jarring of a live nerve throughout the night of anxiety. The past, and the relationships of youth and kindred were sacred to him, and his pain had overshadowed for the hour at least, even the newer claims of his love for Melanie Reynier.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Spirit of the Ancient Wood.

Agatha's first thought on awakening late in the forenoon, was the memory of Sallie Kingsbury coaxing her to bed and tucking her in, in the purple light of the early morning. She remembered the attention with pleasure and gratitude, as another blessing added to the greater one of James Hambleton's turn toward recovery. Sallie's act was mute testimony that Agatha was, in truth, here to Hercules Thayer's estate, spiritual and material.

She summoned Lizzie, and while she was dressing, laid out directions for the day. During her short stay in Ilion, Lizzie had been diligent enough in gathering items of information, but nevertheless she had remained oblivious of any impending crisis during the night. Her pompadour was marcelled as accurately as if she were expecting a morning call from Mr. Straker. No rustlings of the wings of the Angel of Death had disturbed her sleep. In fact, Lizzie would have winked knowingly if his visit had been announced to her. Her sophistication had banished such superstitions. She noticed, however, that Agatha's candles had burned to their sockets, and inquired if Miss Redmond had been wakeful.

"Mr. Hambleton was very ill. Everybody in the house was up till near morning," replied Agatha rather tartly.

"Oh, what a pity! Could I have done anything? I never heard a sound," cried Lizzie effusively.

"No, there was nothing you could have done," said Agatha.

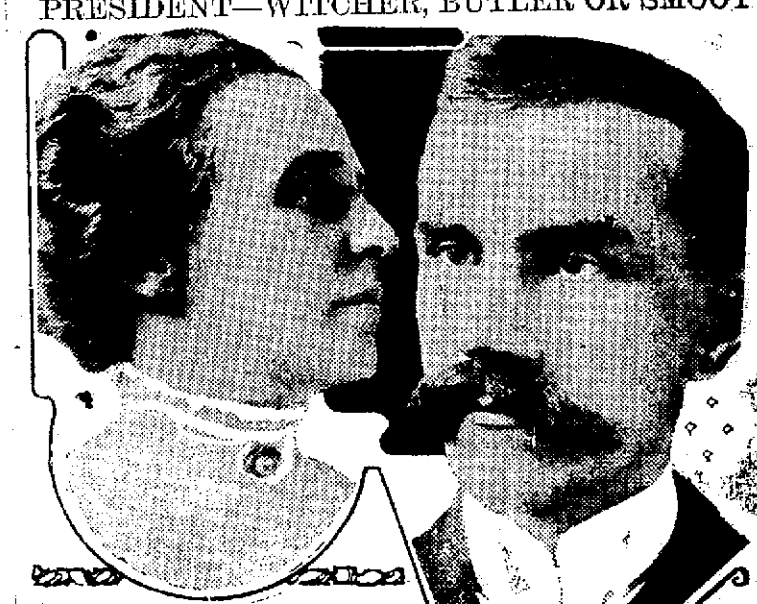

"It's very bad for your voice, Miss Redmond, staying up all night," went on Lizzie solicitously. "You're quite pale this morning. And with your western tour ahead of you!"

Agatha let these adjurations go unanswered. It occurred to Lizzie that possibly she had allied herself with a mistress who was foolish enough to ruin her public career by private follies, such as worrying about sick people. Heaven, in Lizzie's eyes, was the glare of publicity; and since she was unable to shine in it herself, she loved to be attached to somebody who could. Her fidelity was based on Agatha's celebrity as a singer. She would have preferred serving an actress who was all the rage, but considered a popular singer, who paid liberally, as the next best thing.

There was always enough common sense in Lizzie's remarks to make some impression, even on a person capable of the folly of mourning at a death-bed. Agatha's spirits, freshened by hope and the sleep of health, rose to a buoyancy which was well able to deal with practical questions. She quickly formed a plan for the day, though she was wise enough to withhold the scheme from the maid.

Akatha drank her coffee, ate spar-

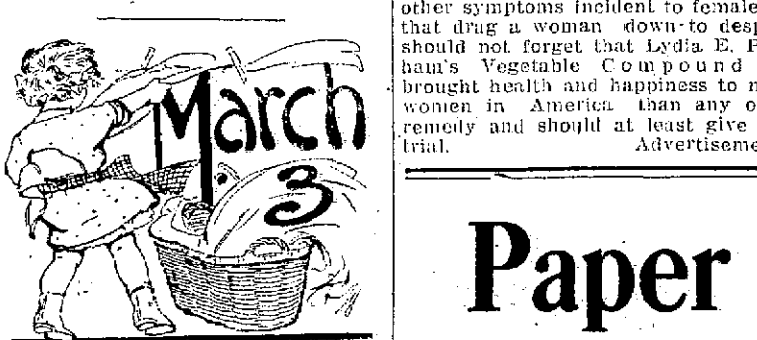

WHO'LL GET G. O. P. VOTES FOR VICE PRESIDENT—WITCHER, BUTLER OR SMOOT?

Who'll get the Republican electoral votes for vice-president? There will be eight G. O. P. votes cast in all—four from Vermont and four from Utah. There isn't a great deal of strife among the candidates, but the Vermont electors say they will never vote for a woman. This seems to put a crimp in the candidacy of Margaret Zane Witcher of Utah, who had hoped to capture the honor. The Vermont electors seem to think well of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, and probably will vote for him. It is possible that Reed Smoot, Mormon senator from Utah, may eventually get the eight votes. It was through his efforts that Taft carried the far western state.

Think Before You Speak.

If thou thinkest twice before thou speakest once thou wilt speak twice the better for it. Better say nothing than not to the purpose. And, to speak pertinently, consider both what is fit and when it is fit to speak. In all debates let truth be thy aim, not victory, or an unjust interest; and endeavor to gain rather than to expose thy antagonist.—William Penn.

DO YOU ENJOY EATING

Or Does Everything You Eat Distress You?

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions also usually go together.

John Lind, of Oneonta, N. Y., says: "I had a bad stomach trouble for fifteen years and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was very poor, and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking two bottles of Vinol I find that it has already made a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in weight."

Vinol makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened liver and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vinol is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs, and is delicious to the taste. Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. QUIT CALOMEL

Thousands Are Turning From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver tonic in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil calomel tablet.

The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous olive tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They oil the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

Real Estate Owner and Agent, Did You "Get Together?"

It's a cinch that some of the owners and agents for real estate in this section work together and work toward one happy end—that of making sales.

To find out who they are—the live ones who have good properties for sale at right prices, keep your eye on the indicator—these real estate columns in The Gazette.

The really agents who are using these columns are pretty safe fellows to list your property with. They don't believe in having a lot of "dead wood" lying around their offices—they keep things moving, keep making sales, in that way always having something new to offer people and thus hold the interest of buyers—people with money to invest.

In case you have property in an agent's hands who does not belong to this live class, tell him you were told that the real estate ads in these Gazette columns reach over four thousand more families of possible buyers for your property than any other Janesville daily newspaper.

If you tell your agents this, we'll back you up, because we can prove it.

Tell him you want your property advertised here and see that he does it.

If he fails you, place your property in the hands of an agent who knows conditions and will advertise it here.

Or, if you wish, send or phone your own ad direct to The Gazette.
